ALICE MILLER

Join Principal John Marsden and the team from Future Schools for a very special tour of Alice Miller School. We will be zooming live from location.

Alice Miller builds on Candlebark's success by adopting the same approach to education, but also by dedicating itself passionately to the development of students' artistic abilities. The school recognises the growing importance and legitimacy of the arts in our society, and is strongly aligned with the views of educators like Sir Ken Robinson on the value of creativity in individual lives. It acknowledges the capacity of artistic expression to contribute to a sense of wellness, fulfilment and joy – and to enhance career prospects in the 21st century.

Virtual School Tours are designed as an interactive live discussion – so please come to the conversation with your questions, insights, and provocations to share with the group.

About Virtual School Tours

Virtual School Tours are an opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of what innovation looks like in different contexts in schools across Australia and internationally. Each school's journey is unique but common to all Future School members is a desire to explore transformation; a change in the form, nature, appearance, feel or purpose of their educational setting.

Each tour lasts 45 minutes and there is always opportunity to ask questions. By expanding our understanding of what innovation looks like in different contexts, we are empowered to take control of our learning voyage in a rapidly evolving environment. All virtual school tours are recorded and can be watched on the Future Schools YouTube Channel.
