

FUTURE SCHOOLS WEBINAR

Wednesday 16th March 4pm - 5pm AEDT

In conversation with author & educator:

JOHN MARSDEN

We believe children should be adventurous. If they are not allowed the opportunity to be adventurous we condemn them to a slow spiritual death. How else is the adolescent to understand his or her capabilities? Who would gallop an unproven horse at a high fence? Who would enter a race in a car which has not been subjected to rigorous stresses? Who wants to tackle adult life with no sense of his or her powers? We need to know what we can do.' Children have lost their freedom - to roam to dare to fail. Stifled by bureaucracy and helicopter parenting they have been limited in their opportunities to learn by taking risks.

John Marsden, the award-winning, bestselling author of the Tomorrow series, has spent his life educating kids and teenagers. He is passionate about the need to prepare them in all ways for the demands of adulthood.

As the founder and principal of two schools - Candlebark and Alice Miller - John has put his theories to the test and seen the empowering results of his methods.

Join us for this inspiring webinar as we talk to John about his latest book, Take Risks. It is the compelling memoir of a revered author and educator, and a forthright discussion on teaching, parenting and society as a whole.
